CITY OF KALININGRAD

1. The City of Kaliningrad [formerly Königsberg], (N 54-45, E 20-30), the capital of Kaliningradskaya oblast, RSFSR, was almost completely destroyed during World War II and, as of 1955, was still undergoing reconstruction. Temporary structures had been erected mainly in the city's southern sector, (see [redacted] sketch on page 5, and legend for same on pages 2, 3, and 4). 25X1
Its 1955 population of approximately one million inhabitants included Russians, Byelorussians, Poles, Ukrainians, and Jews. (All the German and Prussian people had been driven out of the city in 1949) Kaliningrad, like other large cities in the oblast, had an important military garrison. An army general just below the rank of marshal was in charge of all military forces in the Kaliningradskaya oblast.

2. MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION ON OTHER CITIES IN THE KALININGRADSKAYA OBLAST

3. [redacted] cities and localities

- a. Chernyakhovsk (N 54-39, E 21-50): An important military garrison was based in Chernyakhovsk; about six kilometers northeast of the city was a target range (No. 11 on sketch) which was used by artillery and tank units stationed in Chernyakhovsk and other cities in the Kaliningradskaya oblast. The city had two airfields, one located three or four kilometers southwest and the other the same distance northwest of the city (Nos. 9 and 10 on sketch). The airfields, formerly used by the Germans, had been renovated and the runways adapted for jet aircraft use.
- b. Baltiysk (N 54-39, E 19-53): Baltiysk was a naval base in a restricted zone; the Third Baltic Fleet, commanded by Admiral Golovko (fmu) was based in the city. Naval Shipyard No. 820 was located in the outskirts southwest of the city (No. 3 on sketch). The restricted area began at Primorsk (N 54-44, E 20-00).
- c. Zhaleznodorozhnyy (N 54-21, E 21-29): This was a restricted border zone and an important railroad center with connections to Poland and East Germany. An important military garrison, consisting of regular army forces and border patrol units, was located in the area.
- d. Bagrationovsk (N 54-23, E 20-40): This was a restricted area bordering on Poland. An important military post was located at Bagrationovsk.
- e. Gvardeysk (N 54-39, E 21-05): A non-restricted area in which an important military post was located.
- f. Ladushkin (N 54-24, E 20-14): An unimportant military garrison was located in the city proper. En route from Kaliningrad to Ladushkin, on the left side of the Kaliningrad-Ladushkin highway and about six to eight kilometers from Ladushkin, was a restricted area (No. 6 on sketch). This restricted zone was three kilometers long, of unknown width, and, reportedly, was the site of an underground aircraft construction plant. (The plant was said to have been in existence when the territory belonged to Germany.) The restricted area was surrounded by a barbed wire fence and guarded by regular army or MVD personnel. The area was well-camouflaged; no buildings were visible above ground and the area appeared to be a dense pine forest.
- g. Pionersk (N 54-56, E 20-14): A fishing port, with a large fish cannery, and a hydroelectric plant (No. 1 on sketch) which supplied Kaliningrad with power. An unimportant military post was located in the city. An airfield for jet aircraft was located about eight kilometers from the city, three kilometers to the left of the Kaliningrad-Pionersk highway (No. 2 on sketch).

- h. <sup>50</sup>Polesak (N 54-52, E 21-08): <sup>008</sup>Polesak, a fishing port, had an unimportant military garrison (ground forces). A hydroelectric station (No. 8 on sketch), which supplied Kaliningrad with electric power, was located about 300 to 400 meters north of the city outskirts.
- i. <sup>20</sup>Pyze: A small fishing port with a large fish cannery. Between this small village and the Baltic Sea was located an important hydroelectric station (No. 4 on sketch) which supplied power to Kaliningrad.
- j. Mamonovo (N 54-28, E 19-57): A military garrison, composed of ground forces and a border patrol unit, was stationed in this city.
- k. <sup>20</sup>Pravinsk (N 54-20, E 21-01): An important military garrison (ground forces) was located in the city. Two hydroelectric stations were located within the city limits. About two kilometers distant from the city and some four to five kilometers to the right of the Riven-skoye-Abelwangen-Charkhov highway was an airfield for jet aircraft (No. 7 on sketch). (Although the afore-mentioned highway is not indicated on available maps  it was not a newly-constructed road.)
- l. Gusev (N 54-36, E 22-13): Located in this city (formerly known as Gumbinnen) was an important military garrison as well as an artillery target range.
- m. <sup>30</sup>Sovetsk (N 55-06, E 21-50): This large city (German name, Tilsit) had an important military garrison, a border patrol unit, a target range, an airfield equipped with runways for jet aircraft (No. 12 on sketch), and a port on the Nemun River. The airfield was located about eight kilometers from Sovetsk, about two or three kilometers to the left of the highway which entered the city from Gvardysk (N 54-39, E 21-02) and Belshakovo.
